General Business

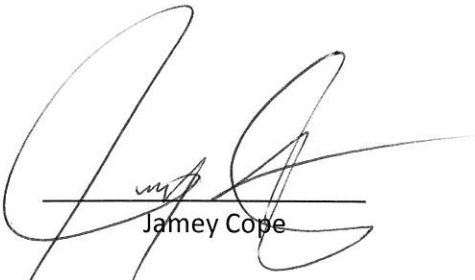

Megan Crane, University of Missouri Extension, Cooperative Feral Hog Outreach Specialist, met with the Commission to discuss feral hogs in Missouri. There is an overpopulation of feral hogs causing destructive behavior. Through cooperative efforts of over 15 federal and state government agencies and non-government organization, the Partnership has worked to eliminate feral hogs from both public and private lands. Some of the cooperative efforts used are trappers, aerial operations, surveys, and equipment to be used by landowners to repair damage caused by feral hogs. The message is "be part of the solution; report sightings and damage!"

Commission conducted general business of the county.
