General Business

FEMA inspections for the Dead End Lane project, as outlined in the project delivery plan, should now be completed. A mitigation representative recently met with the County to provide recommendations following an onsite inspection. Currently, three inches of gravel have been applied in accordance with standard practice, and maintenance records for the road have been requested to be reviewed.

At this time the planned road repairs will be constructed above the water line, with base rock work beginning using larger rip rap along the bank. Environmental and Historic Preservation (EHP) permitting must be finalized before any construction work can begin.

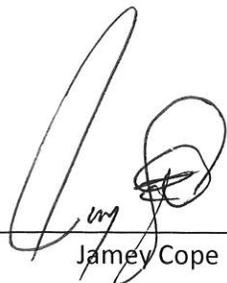

FEMA has also requested documentation from the County regarding emergency protective measures taken to clear roadways following the April storm damage. FEMA will follow up with a detailed project plan, which will include a tracker for ongoing progress. A certificate of liability insurance has already been submitted to FEMA Program Delivery Manager, Jason Stalder.

Commissioners had no further business.
